CAMBRIDGE ASSESSMENT ENGLISH

Cambridge Assessment English is a department of the University of Cambridge and a part of Cambridge Assessment, which is a non-teaching department of the University. It is responsible for developing and delivering English language exams and qualifications worldwide. The British Council, on the other hand, is a UK organization specializing in cultural and educational opportunities. It works closely with Cambridge Assessment English to administer English language exams and provide preparation courses.

Cambridge Assessment English offers a range of exams that assess English language proficiency at different levels, such as the Cambridge English: Proficiency (CPE), Cambridge English: Advanced (CAE), Cambridge English: First (FCE), and others. These exams are widely recognized by universities, employers, and governments around the world as proof of English language ability.

The British Council often serves as an exam center where candidates can register for and take Cambridge English exams. Additionally, the British Council provides resources, courses, and support for English language learning and preparation for these exams. Both Cambridge Assessment English and the British Council play important roles in promoting English language learning and assessment globally, offering opportunities for individuals to improve their language skills and gain internationally recognized qualifications.
